

Jeffrey Rabena grew up on Hornby, married a Hornby Girl in 2019, and had his first child in 2020.

Jeff loves agriculture, community events, woodworking and playing music with his dad.

He's volunteered on many different associations and societies over the years, and if elected, hopes to continue working with the community to sustain Hornby's unique charm, and maintain our diversity.

He'd especially like to help facilitate collective reflection on our waste management, reliance on off-island goods and services, and how we envision tourism moving into the future.
